MArch

An abstract architectural sketch in black ink on a light gray background. The sketch features a series of vertical, rectangular forms of varying heights and widths, some with internal cross-hatching. These forms are interconnected by a network of thin, flowing lines and larger, more complex shapes. The overall composition suggests a landscape or a series of interconnected structures, possibly representing a farm or a community layout. The sketch is positioned horizontally across the middle of the page, partially overlapping the large 'MArch' text.
